For the financial year ending

31 March 2026

Group Tax Strategy for the financial year ended 31 March 2026

1. Introduction

1.1 Purpose

This document represents the tax strategy for CMC Markets plc and all its wholly owned subsidiaries (together referred to throughout this publication as “CMC” or the “Group”).

The Group prepared this statement for the financial year ended 31 March 2026 to meet all the requirements for qualifying UK groups to publish a group tax strategy under Paragraph 16(2), Schedule 19, of the Finance Act 2016 and to demonstrate the Group's commitment to being open and transparent regarding its tax affairs and to complying with its UK and global tax obligations.

1.2 Scope and Application

This strategy has been endorsed by the Board of CMC Markets plc (the “Board”) and applies to all entities within the Group from 1 April 2025. A list of the UK incorporated and resident entities forming part of the Group is included in Appendix A. This strategy covers all taxes payable and reportable by the Group across the UK and any other states or territories in which CMC's tax obligations arise.

This document will be reviewed annually and will be approved by the Board prior to republication.

1.3 About CMC

CMC Markets plc is listed on the London Stock Exchange and has a global footprint, with people and operations throughout the UK and Europe, North America, the Middle East and Asia Pacific.

CMC is a leading global provider of online financial services to the retail and institutional markets. CMC enables clients to trade a broad range of financial instruments through its award-winning Next Generation trading platform alongside the Group's other proprietary trading software.

2. Tax Governance at CMC

2.1 Managing tax risk

The Board is responsible for defining the Group's tax risk appetite and has approved the Group's Global Tax Governance Policy (the “Tax Policy”). The Tax Policy sets the Group's tax strategy and code of conduct and governs how the Group conducts itself with regard to its tax affairs, including how the business identifies and manages tax risk globally. The Group's Global Tax Governance is tailored to take account of local tax laws and compliance requirements. Regional finance teams are accountable for implementing the Group Tax Policy locally with oversight from Group Tax Team.

The Tax Policy is drafted broadly and includes the Group's obligations under the Corporate Criminal Offences regime.

The Board has delegated tax risk management to the Group's Risk Committees and the Senior Management Function 2 role holder, the Chief Financial Officer, who together are responsible for overseeing the conduct of the business regarding tax risk management and overseeing the Group's material tax risks.

The Chief Financial Officer has delegated day-to-day management of the Group's tax affairs to Group Tax team, who have a global remit over tax including monitoring and reporting on the Group's tax obligations globally and ensuring the Group operates and manages tax risks within tolerable limits.

The Group's approach to tax risk management, as outlined in the Board-endorsed Tax Policy, is based on the following processes and is consistent with the Group's risk management framework:

2.1.1 Risk identification and assessment

The Group assess known or potential tax risks to understand its nature and level of priority. This determines whether any additional mitigation steps are required and, if so, outlines any documentation and substantiation, escalation and reporting requirements.

The Group has defined a list of business transactions or events in which a risk assessment and mitigation process is automatically required to be performed. This list is comprised of transactions and events which are generally considered to be significant or complex from a tax perspective and which can give rise to actual tax risk or the potential tax risks.

21.2. Risk management and mitigation

The Group has established a set of protocols which dictate how an identified risk will be managed and mitigated. These protocols determine the extent of tax analysis required, the nature of any engagement with external advisors and/or tax authorities and the level of documentation and internal escalations required.

21.3. Risk monitoring and reporting

Identified tax risks are recorded and tracked and the Board and Executive teams are kept informed about significant tax risk items via periodic updates. This includes the risks posed by tax evasion or the facilitation of tax evasion as part of the Group's response to the Corporate Criminal Offence legislation.

21.4. Risk assurance

Controls, processes and procedures to manage tax risk are reviewed and tested periodically and are updated as required to accommodate for changes in the nature of the business and/or any law or regulatory change. Significant changes are communicated to Board and Executive level stakeholders to maintain the Group's commitment to transparency.

The Group has taken steps to ensure it has reasonable prevention procedures in place to mitigate the risks posed by tax evasion and the facilitation of tax evasion and will continue to monitor and improve its response on an ongoing basis.

22 Attitude towards tax planning and tax risk

The Group is permitted to undertake tax planning initiatives only to the extent they are consistent with the Board endorsed Tax Policy. Under the terms of the Tax Policy, the Group is committed to paying all the tax it is required to pay and to complying with all of its tax obligations by the date they are due with the primary objective of remaining a low-risk taxpayer and achieving certainty and clarity in relation to CMC's tax affairs.

Areas of tax judgement inevitably arise when tax planning initiatives are considered in the Group's increasingly complex operating environment. In this context the Group can only adopt initiatives where the main driver is the commercial and economic rationale and which achieve an appropriate balance of judgement between the potential benefits to the Group and the reputational and brand perception impacts to the business. For the avoidance of doubt, the Group's policy is to never enter into transactions for entirely tax-driven reasons.

The Group's code of conduct is designed to facilitate these commitments. The code has been endorsed by the Board and includes the following as fundamental guiding principles:

1. Tax planning is permitted to the extent it is within the boundaries of the laws of the impacted jurisdictions;
2. Tax planning and tax risks are considered as part of (but are not key drivers of) the overall commercial assessment of any transaction;
3. To take a balanced approach to the assessment and management of tax risk with a view to being considered by tax authorities as low risk;
4. To have regard to the spirit of the law, rather than taking a strict legal interpretation only;
5. Not to participate in tax evasion or to facilitate the evasion of tax by a third party in any way;
6. To adopt tax positions which are no less than reasonably arguable;
7. To seek external tax advice from reputable, well-recognised and regarded tax advisors when the financial or reputational impacts of tax planning initiatives have the potential to impact CMC's objective to remain a low-risk taxpayer.

The Group has a zero-tolerance approach to tax evasion and the facilitation of tax evasion by any person or persons acting for or on behalf of CMC.

23 Interacting with tax authorities

The Group is committed to being open and transparent regarding its tax affairs. The Group openly engages with external stakeholders, including revenue/tax authorities, at the earliest opportunity to discuss tax issues which may be ambiguous.

The Group considers it essential to maintain a positive working relationship with tax authorities. In this context the Group's intention is to work with revenue authorities, including HMRC, to promote a relationship of trust regarding the Group's tax affairs and to ensure tax matters are dealt with quickly and efficiently so the Group can remain focused on its commercial and strategic objectives.

Where appropriate, areas of tax uncertainty are discussed with tax authorities, including HMRC, in advance to ensure that they are agreed before the event. Should any errors in tax submissions and other documents be identified, our aim is to notify tax authorities of these as early as possible and work collaboratively with them to rectify the position.
